

EXTRAS In the office. Both Mr and Mr2 are watching tv.

MR2
Its bad

MR
It's not bad

MR2
It is

MR
Not bad suggests that you know it's evil or something you know its, its poor, its rubbish, you know its, its a shit sitcom

MR2
It's a shit-com, well glad we've sorted that out, thanks very much. That's the career over

MR
That's what one of the reviewers said. Should we... no... we shouldn't make a joke about it.. That's not funny

MR2
What were the reviews like?

MR
If I was being kind, it was a mixed bag

MR2
Let me have a look

MR
Really?

MR2
Yeah let me see it

MR
Bam, can you bring some of the reviews in

MR2
Where's he gone?

MR
Got to do something with his mornings doesn't he

MR

Ah thank you. Oh found another one. Perhaps it's unfair to judge a sitcom on its first episode but when a TV program makes you want to gouge out your own eyes, rather than watch one more minute. You know it's probably not your cup of tea.

MR2

Ouch

MR

Go on pop it in the scrap book

MR2

No, don't pop it in the scrap book, put good ones in the scrap book

MR

What good ones?

MR2

What, there's no good ones?

MR

Ah best one was the telegraph

MR2

Good, what did they say

MR

They didn't review it

MR2

Career is over

MR

Well no despite what they say, the viewing figures were really good, 6.2 million

MR2

6 million people watched it last night and yet none of these liked it

MR

Well these people know about comedy don't they, they know what there talking about, the general public, I mean

MR2

You said, if you get your own show the offers will come flooding in, you said the phone would never stop ringing. Have you had any phone calls at all?

MR

No

MR2

No

MR

Oh what am i talking about, sky called

MR2

And

MR

They say they can put your dish up Thursday